STUDENT EVENTS

Plenty of Spring Events For All

February through April saw a myriad of multicultural and social awareness events on the campus of Western New England College. In addition to Cesar Chavez, president of the United Farm Workers of America, AFL-CIO, Dr. Will Keim came to campus in February to discuss "The Education of Character: Sex, Drugs, & Rock 'n' Roll." His lecture provided a forum for students and faculty to discuss dimensions of character development and social decision making.

"Drugs and Our Community" was the title of a panel February 18 that focused on the impact of drug and alcohol abuse on our community and prevention programs.

An Ebony Food Festival was held February 21 and Randall Robinson, executive director of TransAfrica, gave a lecture titled "South Africa &

One of the cakes on display in the Campus Center during Earth Awareness Week.

Apartheid: Let's Talk About Justice" March 21. The music group Quetzal performed Latin American music March 26 and an International Food Fest was held April 18.

The Residence Hall Association sponsored Earth Awareness Week, April 1-7, and brought events to campus to help educate the community about the environment. Events included a mountain bike raffle, a Pennies for Peace drive, and a world cake celebration for faculty and staff.

Human Relations and Lecture Day Speakers

Three speakers came to campus this spring and gave lectures as part of the 1990-91 Human Relations Program titled "Challenges for the '90s." Dr. Robert Coles, a research scientist and professor of psychiatry and medical humanities at Harvard University spoke on "Education and the Moral Imagination," March 18. Dr. Jacqueline Grennan Wexler, recent president of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, lectured on "Multi-Ethnic and Religiously Diverse Communities Without Strife," March 27. Dr. Arnold S. Relman, editor-in-chief of the New England Journal of Medicine, spoke on "Quality Health Care for All," April 25.

Andrei Codrescu, commentator for "All Things Considered," on National Public Radio, was the keynote speaker on Lecture Day, Thursday, April 11. A well-known poet, essayist, columnist, and radio commentator, Codrescu gave a lecture titled "The Television Revolution and the Future of Eastern Europe." This year's theme was "Changes in Eastern Europe."

Management Association Contributes to Healthful Living Center

"Drive and Determination Lead to Success." These favorite words of Henry Bazan, faculty advisor of the Management Association, have once again inspired the club's members to maintain the tradition of contributing to WNEC and the community.

The Management Association is committed to raising $1000 for the purchase of an engraved brick in the Healthful Living Center. Realizing that it takes more than one brick to build solid walls, the club has issued a challenge to other clubs on campus to match their $1000 contribution.

Recently, members of the Management Association donated $500 raised through various fundraisers, including a spaghetti supper February 16. Club members feel confident that next year's members will indeed raise the additional $500.

Alumni Career Week

More than 40 alumni were on campus March 26, 27, and 28, to participate in Alumni Career Week, sponsored by the offices of Career Planning & Placement and Alumni Affairs. Alumni discussed careers in seven different panels, and attended receptions and dinners. Some of the panels were sponsored by student clubs and organizations. Students and alumni alike made contacts and learned more about career options and new job search strategies. Some of the panel topics included: Options for Accountants, How to Build Your Career in Finance, Careers in Mechanical Engineering, The Value of Networking - How it Works, and Opportunities in Media and Communications.

Dr. Rex Stevens, vice president for academic affairs, presents the Sears-Roebuck Foundation Teaching Excellence and Campus Leadership Award to Dennis Luciano, chair of the Department of Mathematics and Computer Science, at Honors Convocation.

Honors Convocation

Academic awards were given to students at the Honors Convocation in April. Dr. Beverly W. Miller, president of the College, presented an Honorary Doctor of Letters to Bert N. Mitchell, founder and managing partner of Mitchell/Titus & Co., the nation's largest minority-controlled CPA firm. Mr. Mitchell has held many leadership positions, has been active in community affairs, philanthropy, and politics, and has received numerous awards for his work and contributions. Dr. Rex Stevens, vice president for academic affairs, presented the second Sears-Roebuck Foundation Teaching Excellence and Campus Leadership Award to Dennis Luciano, professor of mathematics and chair of the Department of Mathematics and Computer Science.

Commencement

Mortimer R. Feinberg, chairman of the board and cofounder of BFS Psychological Associates, Inc., gave the Commencement address to undergraduates and graduates on May 18. He is a frequent guest on radio and TV including the NBC network Today Show. The Honorable Joseph W. Bellacosa, associate judge of the New York State Court of Appeals, addressed the law school students. There were 989 undergraduate and graduate students and 226 students from the School of Law who graduated in the Class of 1991.

FACULTY HIGHLIGHTS

Award Winners

William Ferris, associate professor of management, recently won a Prentice-Hall Best Paper Award from the Eastern Academy of Management for his paper titled "Using Experiential Exercises in Basic Research." Clara Lim, professor of quantitative methods and computer information systems, was awarded a grant of the software product COBOL 2/WORKBENCH from Micro Focus in December 1990. The grant was packaged with multiple copies of the software and a site license, which was worth more than $30,000. The software will be used as a code generator for systems development in the CIS curriculum.

James Quinn, lecturer in social work (center), presented the seminar that won the Program of the Year Award from the Learning Resource Network. Linda K. Ruth, director of the Extended Education Division, presents the award to him. Bob Perkins (left) won the award last year.

Walter M. Presz, Jr., professor of mechanical engineering, Mohammad Khosrowjerdi, associate professor of mechanical engineering, and David Sheppard '90 coauthored a paper titled "An Automated Data Acquisition/Analysis System for an Elevator Rig Test Facility." The paper was chosen as the American Society of Mechanical Engineer's Best Paper in the Area of Education at the 1990 International Computers In Engineering Conference.

The Extended Education Division sponsored a seminar that received the Program of the Year Award for the second year in a row from the Learning Resources Network. James Quinn, lecturer in social work, presented the seminar "Cultural Awareness: The Puerto Rican Worker" that won the award this year. The Learning Resources Network is an international organization in course programming with more than 5,000 members in 12 countries.

Presentations

Joan Fimbel DiGiovanni presented "Pele: The Archetype; Pegge Hopper: The Hawaiian Artist" at the American Institute of Medical Education's conference,

"American Growth of Creativity in Adult Life," in Kauai, Hawaii, December 26, 1990. She cowrote the presentation with Heather McIntire Mango '90. Dr. DiGiovanni will present "A Psychological Study of the Works of Georgia O'Keeffe" at the Self Psychology and Psychotherapy conference "Creativity and Madness, Psychological Studies of Art and Artists," to be held in Santa Fe, New Mexico, from July 27 through August 3, 1991.

Richard Grabiec, associate professor of industrial engineering and assistant dean of the School of Engineering, Lloyd Emerson, professor of mathematics, David Savickas, associate professor of physics, and Kourosh Rahnaimai, assistant professor of electrical engineering, gave a joint presentation on "Helping Today's Students Succeed in Engineering" at the annual fall meeting of the New England Section of the American Society for Engineering Education, October 12-13, 1990, held at the University of Lowell.

Research

Erika Kates, visiting assistant professor of sociology, received a Western New England College grant to facilitate ongoing research on access to higher education for low-income women. She gave an interim report on her research at a roundtable discussion titled "Education in the Future," at the Institute for Women's Policy and Research, Washington, D.C., at their June 1990 conference. Her findings were also included in a Monograph, "More Than Survival?: Access to Higher Education for Low-Income Women," published in March 1991 by the Center for Women Policy Studies,

A Cakchiquel Maya weaver in Antigua, Guatemala. This picture was taken by Richard Luxton, assistant professor of sociology, who visited Guatemala during the summer of 1990 to do research.

Washington, D.C. Her paper "Transforming Rhetoric into Choice" is included as a chapter in Women, Work and School, Westview Press, Spring, 1991.

Richard Luxton, assistant professor of sociology, spent the summer of 1990 in Costa Rica, Guatemala, and Mexico. He was researching the protection of the rain forest areas and the status of Maya studies in Guatemala, and completing field research on his work "Jaguar Prophecy; the Book of the Chichen Itza." Research was supported by a summer grant from Western New England College.

Faculty Retiring

Clyde Work, dean of the School of Engineering, and Henry Sundberg, Jr., professor of mechanical engineering, retired from the College this year. Professor Sundberg has been at the College for 37 years, and Dean Work for 7 years. A retirement party was given in their honor at the College May 2.

Clyde Work, Dean of the School of Engineering, and his wife, Betsy, at the retirement reception in his honor May 2.

SPORTS

Softball Squad Leads Spring Teams

By Gene Gumbs

A strong regular season showing earned the Western New England College softball team its second consecutive Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference (ECAC) Tournament berth. The Golden Bears, 26-5, were seeded second in the four-team field and were asked to host the double-elimination event.

WNEC defeated Nichols College 4-3 in the opening game, but dropped a 7-4 decision to Salem State in the second. The second day, saw the Golden Bears make it to the Championship game with a 7-3 win over Elmira College. Salem State, however, rolled to its third straight win in the tourney by knocking WNEC out by a 12-4 score.

Sophomore outfielder Denise Porth was selected to play in the New England Division III All-Star game and junior pitcher Nancy Bazan was named to the District I (NY, NJ, and New England) GTE Academic All-America softball team.

The men's tennis finished with a 9-4 record, the best showing by WNEC netters in ten years. Sophomore Chris Castonguay, the top seeded Golden Bear, finished with an 8-5 singles record. Senior Dow Cote also finished 8-5 from the number two slot.

The Golden Bear baseball team had a strong start, but stumbled toward the end of the season with four losses in the last five games to finish with a 12-12-1 record. Junior outfield Ed Azzaro led the team in hitting with a .402 mark, while freshman Don King led all pitchers with four wins and a 3.20 earned run average. Junior first baseman John Gray was named to the District I GTE Academic All-America baseball team.

The WNEC lacrosse squad also started the season quickly with wins in five of the first seven games. However, the Golden Bears finished with a 7-7 record and place fourth in the Pilgrim League. Sophomore Alex Pappas was named to the Pilgrim League All-Star team on the strength of 40 goals and 26 assists. Senior defenseman Miles Robinson was also named to the All-League squad.

WNEC's "Rocky"

By Gene Gumbs

He doesn't run up the steps of the Philadelphia Art Museum. He hasn't yet met a girl named Adrian. No one has erected a statue in his honor—yet. Ken Barile, Western New England College's own "Rocky," is bobbin' and weavin' his way toward a national collegiate boxing title in between rounds of classes and his climb up the academic ladder.

A junior finance major, Ken comes by his pugilistic abilities naturally. His grandfather was an amateur fighter in the Hartford, CT, area in the 1930s and his brother, Tom, has been fighting for four years at Central Connecticut State University. While Ken is a relative neophyte in the sport, having fought just over a year and a half, success has come quickly.

"I'd been training in the gym since I was 12 or 13, but had never fought," the Cheshire, CT, native says. "I had been watching my brother fight for a couple of years and decided that I wanted to give it a try. I called Coach Geldart over the summer last year and told him what I wanted to do and he agreed to have the College sponsor me."

"When Ken called me, I thought that it was a great idea and I wanted to help him out," Eric Geldart says. "We had a boxing team here in the early '80s, so I was aware of what was required. It just took a little while to get all of the paperwork completed."

Western New England's team-of-one competes in the National Collegiate Boxing Association. The NCBA sponsors an event once a month beginning in November and the results of those bouts determine which fighters are selected to compete in the regional tournaments that lead to a national championship event.

Ken began training at the Holyoke Boys Club when school opened in September, preparing for the first show at the Downtown Athletic Club in New York City in November. Former professional fighter Steve Snow from Chicopee, MA, started as Ken's trainer in October.

The stereotypes often associated with the sport of boxing don't fit Ken. He's not at all boastful of his achievements. In fact, he's very softspoken. It's tough to find many fighters with a college education, but Ken is a dedicated student. He's contemplating law school when he earns his undergraduate degree next spring.

With WNEC covering transportation and meals, the 147-pound fighter went through the season with a perfect 7-0 record. That showing earned him a trip to the Southeast Regionals in Virginia.

"Since Western New England College was a new school in the Association, they moved us to the Southeast," Ken explains. Ken fought three times in three days and captured unanimous decisions in bouts against fighters from Shippensburg State, The Citadel, and the U.S. Naval Academy, the latter for the title. He came through it all relatively unscathed, suffering just a small cut on his lip and a bloody nose in his final fight.

His brother, Tom, a senior at Central Connecticut, fought in the Northeast Regional and won the 156-pound division. That meant that the brothers had both earned a spot in the National Championships in Reno, NV, in April.

The best from the four regional tournaments converged on Reno for the Championships and Ken found himself pitted against a boxer from the Air Force Academy in the first round. He lost a tough decision to eliminate him from the competition, but still received a bronze medal and was selected as a NCBA All-American. His brother managed a win in his first fight, but had to settle for a silver medal with a loss in the final bout.

For now, Ken plans to take the summer off. "I'll work out to stay in shape, but I'm not going to fight during the summer," says Ken. He plans to compete in the NCBA again next year, but hasn't made up his mind about his boxing future after college. "I haven't thought much about it. I might fight in the Golden Gloves. Where I go from there I just don't know." Wherever it is, WNEC's own welterweight is sure to meet it head on.

WNEC Sponsors a Program to Help its Alumni

By Deborah Porter Savoie

The Program

The Office of Alumni Affairs at Western New England College has made it one of their top priorities to help its alumni. Recognizing there are many phases of professional life, the Office of Alumni Affairs, with Career Planning and Placement (CP&P), have provided an outlet for: alumni wishing Placement held a networking reception for alumni. The reception was a glowing success, with more than 70 alumni attending. Dr. Stanley Kowalski, Jr., dean of the School of Business, gave a short speech on the job market. Most of all, however, alumni met alumni, exchanged information, offered advice and job leads, and generally helped one another.

Many of the alumni present are handling this. It gives a boost to your efforts."

Al Tiboni '81, secretary/treasurer of the Alumni Association felt, "The evening went better than we planned. There was an excellent turnout for a first-time event. The people who attended were very enthusiastic and I believe many will benefit from their networking." Thanks to Al and his laptop computer, everyone at the reception left with a list of all the alumni present, their professions, graduation dates, and phone numbers, for further reference.

With such a successful turnout, another program is being scheduled for August 6. If you'd like more information call the Office of Alumni Affairs at (413) 782-1327 or (800) 962-6592.

Resources Available

For those alumni seeking job changes, who were not at the event, there are many things you can be doing, and resources to take advantage of here at the College. Career Planning & Placement has an excellent resource library, which is available to you. Please stop by or call. CP&P hours are: Monday through Friday 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. (in the summer to 4:00 p.m.).

A special booklet called "Job Search Tips and Resources" was available for alumni who attended the reception. It included information on job search strategies, resume tips, guidelines for application cover letters, interviewing, building a strong network, CP&P services, and resources available in the library. If you'd like a copy, stop in or call the Career Planning & Placement Office at (413) 782-1217.

CP&P's resource library has books available on the following topics: career planning, the general job search, resumes, interviewing, changing to change careers to make contacts and get job leads; those successfully employed to share experiences in their given professions and to meet prospective employees; and all alumni interested in networking.

On Tuesday, May 7, the Office of Alumni Affairs and Career Planning &

expressed how pleased they were with the turnout, and the excellent mix of those who could help and those who needed help. Just talking to other people in the same situation seemed to help many alumni who are currently unemployed. One alumnus stated, "It was good to share common feelings on the job search process and how others

CP&P has resources for all different career fields such as marketing, sales, advertising, finance and accounting, engineering, government, social and community services, education, math and computer science, science, health, arts and communication, and criminal justice.

They have job information in the form of geographic lists, directories, phone books, and special populations, and information on graduate schools.

Also, counselors in CP&P are available to meet with alumni during the day throughout the summer. Call CP&P to make an appointment. Counselors include Rosalind Hoffa, director, Carolyn Carpenter, associate director, and Mary Anne Gerzanick, assistant director.

Alumni Helping Alumni

Alumni who know of job openings within their companies, please send the information to Career Planning and Placement. They will print the openings in their weekly newsletter. Any alumni wishing a copy can call CP&P at (413) 782-1217.

For those alumni interested in being a professional resource for undergraduates and/or alumni, you can become a part of the Alumni Career Network. Contact CP&P or the Office of Alumni Affairs for further information.

And last of all, don't forget what an invaluable resource you have in your colleagues. Let other alumni help you. . .

Letter from the Director

Dear Alumni and Friends:

Continuing our work here in the Office of Alumni Affairs, we work side by side with the Alumni Association. Together, our major aim is to inform alumni as to the needs of the College so they can support their alma mater in the best ways possible. The alumni, as always, come through terrifically for us as we continue promoting phase II of the College's Master Plan. This includes the construction of a Healthful Living Center and the redesigning of Rivers Memorial Building into an expanded auditorium and a Fine Arts

Thomas Hastings

Center. We also continue campaigning for the Alumni Scholarship Endowment Fund.

As always, the office remains greatly concerned for all of our alumni, especially for those who have served in the Gulf, and for those who have been hit by the hard times and are unemployed or seeking career changes. We're taking major steps to help you, and will continue to do so.

Thanks to all our alumni who volunteered their time and/or pledged a gift for the 1991 Annual Fund. A record high of $355,770 has been raised in our fall and spring campaigns.

We have also succeeded in expanding the Alumni-in-Admissions program and the Alumni Career Network program, so alumni support is definitely with us. I feel we're moving into the '90s as a WNEC family. Please join us, and to all those already involved, my heartfelt thanks.

Thomas Hastings, Director

A Salute to Horace O. McCrea '23

Horace O. McCrea was born September 6, 1897. He graduated from Technical High School, Springfield, MA, in 1911, and after attending evening classes for many years, he graduated from the College's School of Business with an accounting degree in 1923. He married his teenage sweetheart, Gertrude Miller, in 1929.

Mr. McCrea was a lifelong employee at Gilbert and Barker, a Springfield-based firm. He started working there while in high school as a timekeeper and retired in 1959 as supervisor of the Export Sales Department.

He was actively involved in his church for over 30 years as trustee, treasurer, and as a member of the Executive Committee of the New England Deaconess Association, which oversees the Rockridge Nursing Home in Northampton, MA, where he lived for many years. Mr. McCrea's retirement years were busy. He spent a good deal of his time on his imposing stamp collection, which he built up during his working years collecting stamps from all over the world.

He had an infectious smile and a wonderful sense of humor. He was very proud of his education and the way Western New England College was growing. Always a great supporter in each of our capital campaigns, Mr. McCrea was one of the first to donate stock to the College's Pooled Income Fund. A large part of Mr. and Mrs. McCrea's estate has been established as an endowed scholarship fund for students in the School of Business. The "Horace O. McCrea and Gertrude McCrea Scholarship Fund" will be a lasting tribute to an alumnus who always believed in the value of higher education.

If you would like to talk with Janet Doolin, J.D., regarding your estate plan and how you can include the College in your will and perhaps start a scholarship fund in a special person's honor, please call collect (413) 782-1477. We are happy to work with you and your advisors.

Alumni Directory Questionnaire Coming Soon

All alumni will soon be receiving an important Alumni Directory Questionnaire in the mail. This is being sent to give you the opportunity to be accurately listed in the new Western New England College Alumni Directory.

Please be sure to complete and return your Directory Questionnaire as soon as possible!

Once received, your information will be edited and processed by our publisher, Harris Publishing Co., Inc. More than 17,700 alumni will be included in this impressive new directory.

If you don't return your questionnaire there is a possibility you may be inadvertently omitted. So don't take a chance. . . watch for your questionnaire and return it promptly.

Nick Creanza is Taking Care of Business

Upon first meeting Nick Creanza '79 (MBA), one immediately gets a sense that he is a worker, and that he gravitates toward other workers. As president of the Western New England College Alumni Association, he clearly has some work in mind, and many goals he wants to accomplish.

A graduate of the Hampden College of Pharmacy, which has since merged with the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy and Allied Health Sciences, Nick has been a practicing pharmacist since 1974, including being an assistant hospital director at Springfield Municipal Hospital. He earned his MBA at WNEC in 1979 and currently runs his own pharmacy called Campus Pharmacy, in Springfield, MA. He lives in Wilbraham with his wife, Paula, and two children Peter, 13, and Angela, 10.

In addition to serving as president of the Alumni Association, Nick is also president of the Western Massachusetts Pharmaceutical Association, a member of the Advisory Council to the president of the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy and Allied Health Sciences, and a corporator of the Massachusetts Association, Elks, Shriners, and UNICO.

As for the Alumni Association at WNEC, Nick feels, "Our members are a

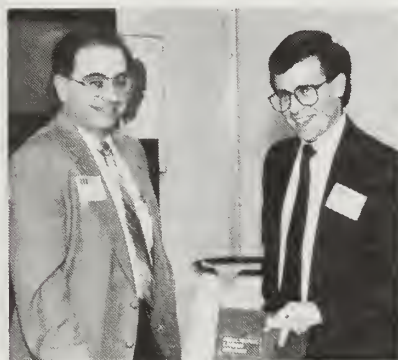

"The two most important goals for the Association currently are to continue to support fundraising for the Healthful Living Center, and, a very important project to me, to serve our unemployed. You can't expect alumni to donate to their alma mater if they are unemployed. The best way to make sure the College flourishes, is to make sure its alumni flourish."

dynamic group of people, working hard on all the various committees to accomplish the same major goals: to reach out and get even more alumni involved in our work, and to support and advance the College."

Nick explains the primary goals of his presidency: "The two most important goals for the Association currently are to continue to support fundraising for the Healthful Living Center, and, a very important project to me, to serve our unemployed. You can't expect alumni to donate to their alma mater if they are unemployed. The best way to make sure the College flourishes, is to make sure its alumni flourish."

He also cites some secondary goals for the Association including continuing to support the scholarship programs, and developing a Past Presidents' Club. Nick adds, "The intention of forming this club is to develop long-range plans for nationalization and representation in the National Association of Alumni. The Club would also serve to provide direction for future presidents to maintain a continuity of growth and development with the Alumni Association."

Nick enjoys working with Tom Hastings, the director of Alumni Affairs at WNEC. "He's super! Tom is a worker. A go-getter. Once he sees a vision, he immediately takes action, and starts implementing ideas. He's brought some great ideas with him from his former position at Salve Regina and we're lucky to have him here at WNEC."

Feeling confident the Alumni Association will accomplish its goals, Nick is serious about his work and hopes his clear direction continues to lead the Association to take action! "Action is what it's about. We have to be doers to be successful, and to keep the College successful."

Alumni Fund Committee Meeting Update

Peter Stone '70/G'78, Alumni Fund Coordinator, and Rocco Falcone '84/G'87, chair of the new Alumni/Corporation Solicitation Committee for the Healthful Living Center, talk at the May 9 meeting.

An Alumni Fund Committee meeting took place May 9. Alumni Fund Coordinator Peter B. Stone '70/G'78, senior partner at Youell Haviland Bliss, introduced special guest Rosalind Hoffa, director of career planning and placement. She spoke on the expanding Alumni Career Network.

To date, $662,433 has been raised by alumni for the Healthful Living Center. Rocco Falcone '84/G'87, executive vice president of Rocky's Home Centers, Inc., was chosen to head up the Alumni/Corporation Solicitation Committee for the Healthful Living Center.

There was lots of action as alumni took on the varsity hockey team in a game at the Springfield Civic Center February 10. Both sides played hard, but the alumni team came out victorious!

WELCOME aboard class correspondents! We have already recruited 15 class correspondents to represent their classes and gather class notes. From now on send any information you'd like in Class Notes to the name and address indicated below the year you graduated. If there is no class correspondent yet, how about volunteering? We hope to recruit at least one correspondent for each class. Just call Kara Brighenti '87/G'89 at (413) 782-1327 to join the family. Class correspondents will help us to elicit more information and make the Class Notes section MUCH BIGGER! So keep sending information, and if you've never sent anything in, now is the perfect time to start.
